Care that's there when you need it most

Prepare today for the support you may need after an accident or illness.

Expecting the unexpected

Unexpected health issues can arise even for those who maintain a healthy lifestyle. Whether you are working or retired, it's important to consider the cost of health care and how an unexpected accident or illness could impact your family's finances.

Health care is constantly changing and the costs are increasing

Hospital stays can be costly, often resulting in shorter admissions followed by expensive rehabilitation and therapy. For those requiring ongoing care, skilled nursing facilities offer a valuable alternative, providing a broad spectrum of medical, health, and personal services to support your recovery.

The average annual cost of a semi-private room at a Skilled Nursing Facility is nearly

$115,000 a year.¹

Another option to consider is an assisted living facility. These facilities are for those who need limited help with daily care. All of these stays can be expensive and costs continue to rise. Having coverage that helps offset these costs can make a significant difference in your recovery journey.

The average annual cost of an Assisted Living Facility is nearly $76,000 a year.²

You have the freedom to choose

If you need care, who would decide on your treatment location? Being in an unfamiliar environment can be unsettling. Planning ahead ensures your preferences are respected and needs are met during unexpected illnesses or accidents.

With a Recovery Care Choice plan, you get to choose where and how you recover. Benefits are paid directly to you, or a medical provider that you designate. These benefits complement your existing health coverage and are tax-free.
